Nepalis spend third night in open as toll passes 4,000

Thousands of Nepalis have been sleeping on the streets of Kathmandu, the capital city, after the recent earthquake.

The earthquake, which measured 7.8 on the Richter scale, hit Nepal on April 25, 2015, triggering a massive landslide and a series of aftershocks.

The official death toll in Nepal has now risen to 4,010, with thousands injured and homeless.

Amidst the chaos, rescue efforts continue to help those affected.

Ambulances get green light at more intersections

The Traffic Department has installed a system called EVPS (Electronic Vehicle Positioning System) in some intersections to help emergency vehicles move more efficiently.

With the latest expansion, a total of 19 EVPS sensors have been installed with EVPS sensors.

Arab coalition vows two-pronged strategy over Yemen

The Arab coalition has vowed to continue its efforts to achieve a political solution to the Yemeni crisis.

The coalition has been fighting the Houthi rebels since September 2015.

The Houthis have taken control of Sanaa, Yemen's capital, and have been conducting a campaign of violence.

In response, the Arab coalition has been carrying out aerial strikes.

The Houthis have also gained control of many parts of the country.

Aid groups are concerned about the humanitarian situation.

The coalition's strategy is to achieve a political solution and a ceasefire in Yemen.

The Houthis have repeatedly rejected demands for a ceasefire.

The Arab coalition has been under pressure from the United Nations and other organizations to find a peaceful solution.

The Houthis have been accused of committing human rights abuses.
